Tracey Singh, Access and Functional Needs Program Manager, Washington State Military Emergency Management Department

Speaker Biography:

After many years of working in Education and volunteering for the American Red Cross, I was able to put both my loves together and work for the Washington State Emergency Management as the Access and Functional Needs Program Manager. This program is a new in development program developed by a group of citizens in Washington that understand the need to make sure that all programs, services and facilities in the state are completely access to all. My experience for the Red Cross is the same position in a volunteer basis where I have worked over 80 disaster in last 4 years to support residents of all states from California to New York as well as the various islands.
